TED ARISON
Partner

Ted Arison had never seen a professional basketball game when he was approached about becoming a Partner in a dream, NBA basketball in South Florida. It was his civic pride and his commitment to the community that made his decision to join THE HEAT partnership an easy one. "For what it means to the city...it's all worth it," he said at the time.

He is probably best known as the founder of Carnival Cruise Lines. In just 20 short years it has grown from humble beginnings to be the largest, most successful cruise company in the world. An active philanthropist and humanitarian, Arison created the National Foundation for Advancement in the Arts which encourages aspiring young artists to continue studies through grant programs. The Foundation, in turn, was instrumental in launching Miami's New World Symphony which has since won wide acclaim.

Though Arison is now retired in his native Israel, he is a frequent visitor to South Florida. His own Miami-based Arison Foundation continues to make contributions to a variety of cultural and charitable organizations in the community.

Ironically, it was retirement that first brought him to Miami and led to his involvement in the cruise business. After working in the family shipping business in Israel, Arison operated his own fleet of cargo ships. He sold out and moved to the United States in 1954 and worked in the air cargo business. Eventually he started his own company in that field which he took public. In 1966, he sold his shares and retired to Miami.

That was to be short-lived however, as he quickly assumed responsibility for a passenger shipping operation. When suddenly, due to circumstances beyond his control, that company was left without a ship, Arison negotiated a deal that brought a Norwegian ship to Miami and created Norwegian Caribbean Lines.

In 1972, he founded Carnival Cruise Lines. Today the company operates 16 ships under three different brand names: Carnival, Holland America Line and Windstar Cruises. Even though he retired as Chairman of Carnival Cruise Lines in late 1990, he remains on the company's Board of Directors and as a special consultant for the company's shipbuilding program.

Arison also is a member of the Greater Miami Jewish Federation and former chairman of the Tel Aviv Foundation. He is a founder of Mt. Sinai Medical Center, the University of Miami Albert Einstein College of Medicine, which selected him as its Distinguished Achievement Award honoree in 1983, and serves as a trustee and member of the Florida Governor's Mansion Foundation. Additionally, Arison was granted an honorary doctorate of laws degree from Barry University.

ZEV BUFMAN
Partner

It requires good business savvy and a bit of showmanship to help bring an NBA expansion franchise into existence. In the early stages of the NBA effort, Zev Bufman, Billy Cunningham and Lewis Schaffel worked very hard to assure success for the MIAMI HEAT.

Born in Israel, he came to the United States in the early 50's to study at L.A. State College, where he earned a degree in Theater Arts. Bufman gained practical experience by acting on the stage and in various film and television roles. In 1959 while still in college he embarked on his new career. He opened Le Grand, the first dinner theater in the United States. His Broadway career began when he created "Vintage '60" and co-produced it with David Merrick.

Bufman arrived in Miami in 1962 where he leased and became sole owner of the Coconut Grove Playhouse. Five years later he premiered the first season of the Parker Playhouse in Ft. Lauderdale.

He created a major sensation on Broadway in 1966 with the American version of "Marat/Sade." In addition to critical acclaim, the play received several Tony Award nominations. The following year "Your Own Thing" took New York by storm by becoming the first Off-Broadway musical to win the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award.

In 1976 his version of "The Magnificent Yankee," starring James Whitmore and Audra Lindley, was chosen by the John F. Kennedy Center of the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. as its Bi-Centennial production.

In the late 1970's Bufman was producing two or three Broadway shows a year. He brought four classic musical revivals back to Broadway, "Oklahoma," "Brigadoon," "West Side Story," and "Peter Pan," starring Sandy Duncan. In 1982 he presented Elizabeth Taylor in her Broadway debut "Little Foxes" and repeated the same in London 1983-84. Later in 1984 he teamed up Elizabeth Taylor with Richard Burton in the Broadway production of "Private Lives." Later in the 1980's he presented Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat."

Bufman has presented numerous stars in the theater, such as Dustin Hoffman in "Jimmy Shine," Muhammad Ali in "Buck White," Henry Fonda in "The Trial of A. Lincoln," plus such luminaries as Carol Channing, Angela Lansbury, Charlton Heston, Jason Robards Jr. and Valerie Harper. His many Broadway shows have gathered over 27 Tony Award nominations.

He has been an active member for several years on the Board of Directors of the Wolf Trap Amphitheater in Washington, D.C. and the New World Symphony. Last year, Bufman announced a new joint venture with Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. to build a chain of 20,000 seat amphitheaters throughout the country. The first one opened in Phoenix Nov. 11, 1990, and the second one opened in Charlotte, NC July 4, 1991. The third one is scheduled to open in South Florida in 1992.

BILLY CUNNINGHAM
Partner

Billy Cunningham is an NBA success story. For his accomplishments as a player, he is a member of the Basketball Hall of Fame. As a coach, he won 200 and 300 games faster than any coach in League history. As a basketball executive, he has brought an NBA expansion team to South Florida and is going to make them a winner.

The reason Cunningham has been a winner is because he leaves nothing to chance. His belief that organization, hard work and dedication are what it takes to succeed, has made him one of the most respected minds in the NBA.

Born in 1943, the Brooklyn native spent many hours playing basketball with his boyhood friend, Lewis Schaffel. He later attended the University of North Carolina, where he was a two-time All-American who always impressed Coach Dean Smith with the intelligence and hard work he brought to the game.

Cunningham was drafted on the first round of the 1965 NBA Draft by the Philadelphia 76ers and played for 11 years with the Sixers and the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association. He is remembered most for his desire to excel and his complete dedication to the game. It was this desire and dedication that made him a key member of the 1966-67 76ers Championship Team that is considered by many to be the greatest team of all time. Other career achievements include being named to the 1966 NBA All-Rookie Team and four All-NBA Squads. In 1972-73, he also was selected the Most Valuable Player in the ABA. In 1990, Cunningham was one of ten initial inductees chosen for selection into the New York City Basketball Hall of Fame.

Cunningham's coaching career began on November 4, 1977 when he became Head Coach of the 76ers. During his career he won 454 games and lost 196 for a .698 winning percentage. He led the Sixers to the NBA title in 1982-83 and on two other occasions, his teams went to the NBA Finals. His 66 playoff wins put him in fifth place on the all-time list, behind Pat Riley, Red Auerbach, K.C. Jones and Chuck Daly.

As a Partner in the MIAMI HEAT, he was instrumental in bringing the NBA to South Florida. Now his responsibilities include building a strong foundation for the team. Cunningham knows what it means to be a winner, and he will do what it takes to make THE HEAT just that.

Cunningham resides in North Miami Beach. He and his wife, Sondra, have two daughters, Stephanie and Heather.

LEWIS SCHAFFEL
Managing Partner

The dream of the MIAMI HEAT first began when two buddies from Brooklyn, Lewis Schaffel and Billy Cunningham, friends since they were eight years old, started talking privately to themselves about owning an NBA franchise. Between them, they had worked at every facet of the game – Cunningham as a player and coach; Schaffel as a player representative, executive of three League franchises and as a member of the NBA Board of Governors. They both took a shot – it was worth everything to make their dream come true.

Without anything more than a spirit to succeed, Schaffel resigned as Chief Operating Officer of the NBA New Jersey Nets in June 1986, moved to Miami, and with Cunningham and Zev Bufman began the arduous journey of bringing THE HEAT to South Florida.

Schaffel's NBA connection began in 1970 when he became a sports agent. Starting with just one client, Nate Archibald, he and his partner Jerry Davis, were representing more than 30 NBA players by 1977 and had created one of the most successful organizations of its kind in the country.

He demonstrated a penchant for risk-taking and the unusual when he walked away from their successful business and joined the management side of the NBA (the first ever to make such a switch) as General Manager of the New Orleans Jazz. Immediately after League rules allowed it, his initial act with the Jazz was the signing of Len "Truck" Robinson as the NBA's initial veteran free agent. His intuition proved correct as Robinson was named First Team All-NBA and led the League in rebounding. The Jazz prospered too, setting a then-franchise record for victories in a season.

Schaffel subsequently went on to Atlanta where he was on the Board of Directors for both the Atlanta Hawks and Braves and then returned home to become Chief Operating Officer and NBA Governor of the New Jersey Nets.

In New Jersey, Schaffel hired Stan Albeck as Head Coach. The Nets finished the regular season by winning 19 of their last 26 games and went on to defeat the defending World Champion Philadelphia 76ers in the first round of the playoffs.

All of his past experiences served as the foundation to prepare him for the job in Miami. "There is no other challenge I could possibly have committed myself to which has brought more personal satisfaction and total fulfillment than what I am doing right now," said Schaffel. "THE HEAT was a dream – now it is forever. Billy and myself are the perfect example for all to see: if you can dream it...you can accomplish it."

KEVIN LOUGHERY
Head Coach

As the MIAMI HEAT's new Head Coach, Kevin Loughery brings to the team 29 years of NBA experience as a player, head coach, assistant coach, scout and broadcaster.

In announcing Loughery's selection, HEAT Managing Partner Lewis Schaffel said, "He has enthusiasm. He'll bring something fresh to the lockerroom. He brings energy. Players love playing for him...Kevin's right for the team."

The 51-year old Loughery's coaching career began in 1972-73 when he took over as player-coach of the Philadelphia 76ers for the last 31 games of the season. He coached the team to a 5-26 record, which was more than half of the team's wins during their 9-73 season. The following year Loughery moved to the ABA where he coached Julius Erving and the New York Nets. He coached the Nets to a 168-84 record (.667) and two League Championships in his three seasons in the ABA.

In 1976-77, the Nets joined the NBA and the team sold the rights to Erving. Loughery coached the Nets through their first five seasons in the NBA before becoming the Head Coach of the Atlanta Hawks in 1981. Loughery led the Hawks for two seasons amassing an 85-79 record (.518) before leaving to join the Chicago Bulls in 1983. The Bulls were 27-55 in Loughery's first season. In the 1984 NBA Draft, the Bulls acquired Michael Jordan and improved to 38-44 and reached postseason play. Despite the team's improved play, Loughery was replaced in the offseason.

Loughery was named Head Coach of the Washington Bullets for the final 13 games of the 1985-86 season and stayed in Washington through the beginning of the 1987-88 season.

Loughery was not on the bench the following two years serving as a broadcaster on Los Angeles Clippers and Atlanta Hawks games. During this period, he also was a Scout for THE HEAT. He returned to coaching as an Assistant with the Hawks last season before being named Head Coach of THE HEAT in June 1991.

Loughery began his NBA career when he was drafted by the Detroit Pistons on the second round (13th overall) of the 1962 NBA Draft. He was then traded to the Baltimore Bullets midway through his second season, spending eight years in Baltimore before finishing his career in Philadelphia. Loughery averaged 15.3 points in 11 years as an NBA player.

He played his first two years of college basketball at Boston College before finishing his career at St. John's University. Loughery was born March 28, 1940 in Brooklyn, NY.

He and his wife Sheila reside in Miami. They have two sons, Kevin and Steven.

BOB STAAK
Assistant Coach

One of the first things Kevin Loughery did upon being named the HEAT Head Coach was hire Bob Staak as an assistant.

A 10-year Head Coach at the Collegiate level, Staak had been associated with the NBA as an assistant coach and scout the past two season.

Staak began his coaching career as the Head Coach at East Hartford (CT) High School following graduation from the University of Connecticut in 1971. After one year at East Hartford, he spent three years as an assistant at Connecticut and one at William and Mary before being hired in a similar capacity by Detroit Pistons Head Coach Chuck Daly at Penn in 1975. At Penn, Staak also worked for Bob Weinhauer who is currently an Assistant Coach for the Atlanta Hawks. In his four years at Penn, the Quakers won two Ivy League Championships and advanced to the NCAA Final Four in 1979.

In 1979, Staak was named Head Coach at Xavier when he compiled an 88-86 record in six seasons. Prior to his arrival, Xavier had enjoyed just two winning seasons in the prior 14 years. During the 1982-83 season, the Musketeers recorded an 8-3 conference record and he was named the Midwestern Conference Coach-of-the-Year. The following season, Xavier finished with the school's best record (22-8) in 35 years and received its first NCAA bid since 1961. In 1984-85, the Musketeers went 22-11 to give the school consecutive winning seasons for the first time in 22 years.

In 1985, Staak was named Head Coach at Wake Forest and remained in that capacity until serving as an assistant coach under Don Casey with the LA Clippers in 1989-90. Last season, he was a Scout for the Washington Bullets.

The 43-year old Staak resides in Miami. He has a son Corey (9).

ALVIN GENTRY
Assistant Coach

HEAT Head Coach Kevin Loughery completed his coaching staff in early September by naming Alvin Gentry as an Assistant Coach.

The 36-year old Gentry spent last year as an Assistant Coach with the Los Angeles Clippers following a two-year stint under Larry Brown in San Antonio. Gentry was also an assistant under Brown at the University of Kansas for three seasons, including the Jayhawks 1988 NCAA Championship, before following him to the Spurs.

A native of Shelby, North Carolina and a first cousin of former pro David Thompson, he played for Press Maravich and Bobby Cremins at Appalachian State where he earned a degree in Management.

Following an unsuccessful tryout with the Denver Nuggets in 1977, Gentry spent one year as a student assistant coach at Colorado. After a year in private business, he returned to college coaching serving as an assistant at Baylor for one season. Gentry rejoined Colorado for the following four years before being hired by Brown at Kansas in 1985.

Last summer Gentry was married to the former Suzanne Harris. He has one daughter, Alexis (7).

STU INMAN
Director of Player Personnel

While many individuals were involved, the man most responsible for the HEAT's success in the 1988 Expansion Draft and the last four college drafts was Director of Player Personnel Stu Inman.

In that capacity, Inman's primary responsibility is the evaluation of college and professional talent. He has been involved in this facet of an NBA franchise for the past 22 years.

Inman was one of the original members of the Portland Trailblazers' front office being hired as a scout by the team in 1969 shortly before its first NBA season. He later served the team as Coach, Director of Player Personnel and General Manager. It was under his guidance and skill that Portland drafted such players as Maurice Lucas, Bill Walton, Clyde Drexler and Terry Porter. His drafting expertise propelled the Blazers to the NBA Championship just seven years after the franchise began.

In 1985 Inman joined his old friend, Don Nelson, in Milwaukee serving as Director of Player Personnel with the Bucks for 18 months before accepting his current position with THE HEAT in September 1987.

Stu and his wife, Elinor, have five children and twelve grandchildren. They live in North Miami.

TONY FIORENTINO
Scouting Coordinator

Fiorentino begins his first season as Scouting Coordinator after spending the past three years as a HEAT Assistant Coach. As Scouting Coordinator, he will be responsible for advance scouting and assisting the Director of Player Personnel in evaluating college talent. Fiorentino joined THE HEAT prior to the inaugural season after serving as an Assistant Coach at Iona College for the previous two years.

His highly successful coaching career began in 1975 when he was named an assistant at Mt. Vernon (NY) High School. Three years later he was elevated to the head coaching position leading Mount Vernon to New York State Championship titles in 1979 and 1981. His teams won five Section One crowns and seven league titles enroute to compiling a 182-21 career coaching record. When he resigned to become an assistant at Iona, his .897 winning percentage was the highest among all active high school coaches in New York State.

At Mt. Vernon, Fiorentino was named Coach-of-the-Year three times by both the New York Daily News and the Westchester County Coaches Association. Among the players he coached in high school were Rodney McCray of the Dallas Mavericks and Roy Smith, a former Major League pitcher, whom he coached in baseball as well as basketball.

Fiorentino received his undergraduate degree from Dowling (NY) College in 1971 and earned a Masters in Counseling from the University of Bridgeport in 1975.

Trainer/Travel Coordinator

Ron Culp brings to THE HEAT not only the experience of serving as an NBA trainer, but the expertise of serving in that capacity for an expansion franchise.

Culp, who has 20 years of League experience, began his NBA tenure in 1970-71 as the initial trainer of the then expansion Cleveland Cavaliers. He worked for the Cavs until 1974 when he joined the Portland Trailblazers. It was with the Blazers that Culp enjoyed an ll-year association with Stu Inman, the HEAT's Director of Player Personnel.

A 1969 graduate of Bowling Green State University, Culp began his training career at Baldwin-Wallace College before accepting the Cleveland job.

He was honored by the National Athletic Trainers Association (NATA) and the National Basketball Association Trainer's Association (NBATA) as the 1986-87 Trainer-of-the-Year for his work that season with the Trailblazers.

Culp and his wife Marilyn, live with their daughters, Amanda (11) and Elizabeth (4), in Kendall.

He was graduated from Central Michigan University with a dual degree in Physical Education and Health Education in 1977 and earned a Masters' Degree in Exercise Physiology from Michigan State University in 1981. Foran is a member of National Strength and Conditioning Association and serves as the organization's Chairman of the NBA Professional Conditioning Coaches Committee. WALI JONES

Director of Community Relations

As THE HEAT's Director of Community Relations, Wali Jones' primary responsibilities are to work with the MIAMI HEAT COMMUNITY FOUNDATION and other South Florida agencies to establish a positive relationship between the team and its community.

Jones, a 10-year NBA veteran, was drafted by the Detroit Pistons on the third round of the 1964 NBA draft. He was traded to the Baltimore Bullets and was named to the 1965 NBA All-Rookie team. The following season, Wali was traded to the Philadelphia 76ers, where he became a teammate of MIAMI HEAT Partner Billy Cunningham. The two were key members of the 1966-67 World Champion 76ers, considered by many to be the greatest NBA team of all-time. Jones also played with the Milwaukee Bucks and the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

Jones founded "Concerned Athletes in Action" in 1969 and for the past two seasons he has developed the MIAMI HEAT's SHOOT FOR THE STARS program. This educational and recreational program has trained more than 20,000 children from Homestead to West Palm Beach during that time. The program has become a major success, as statistics indicate a 67% increase in academic excellence and a 95% increase in attendance among students that participated in the program. There are 10,000 "Kids Caring For Kids" members in the club.

His son Askia is currently playing Division I basketball for Kansas State University.
